Perspectives on Language Standardization

སྐད་ཡིག་གཅིག་སྐྱར་སྐོར་གྱི་སྒྲུབ་ཚུལ།

FRIDAY 26th - SATURDAY 27th MARCH 2010

Throughout the world minority language communities have looked to language standardization as a means to maintain their languages and strengthen cultural integrity, yet this very process may also contribute to discrimination and social conflict. Together with experts on Hungarian, Kurdish, Tibeto-Burman languages, and the three major dialects of Tibetan, we will explore the implications of language standardization within minority communities.

This event is free and open to the public; registration is requested.
